"Devotion" is a story that analyse that most divine of human emetions— love—not the all consuming fires of pas-sion, but the calm patient renunciation in a terrible position. The woman who married for wealth and polistion found everything she wanted except happiness 120 Laurel Hill Ave., or Phone 598-3 Her sister who married for love foun aspicion. The other woman suffered and endured the very depths of sorrow to the very limit of human endurance until she achieved the reward of devotion. How the lives of the three neekers of happiness were twisted by fate until the skein was untangled is shown in a series of scenes and stuations that runs the entire scale of human emotions.
